

Steven Stradley

Steven Stradley's paintings are colorful conjunctions of form, material and space. While his paintings reference op-art, he creates them to be both painting and object, more of an encounter than a purely visual form. He received a Master of Fine Art in Painting from Michigan State University after completing a BFA in painting at Utah State University and currently teaches at Dixie State University in St. George, Utah.